
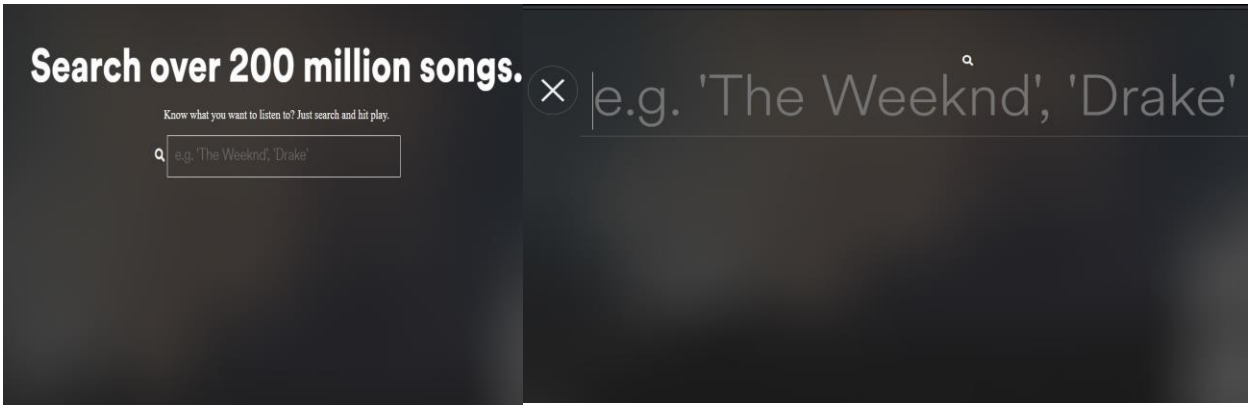
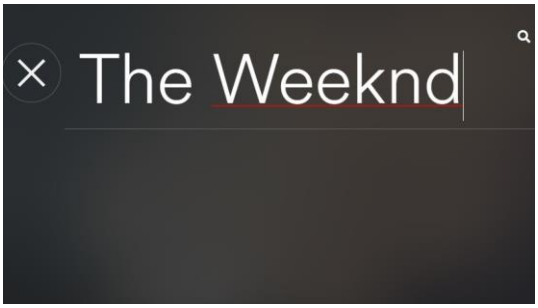
The User Interface app I chose to improve was the music application Spotify. Spotify is a great application for any music lover, but I believe that in the “search” bar the font is way to small. As you can tell in the picture above this is a physical representation of what is seen on the app on a phone. The font is almost barely readable on any smart phone.





The pictures listed above are my answers to making the text in Spotify larger. What I have created is an original search bar that when selected, in pops out almost like a third dimensional object on the screen. Following that option, as you can tell the text, when typing is much larger than the original text in the application.
